

Excellence, gratitude and thanksgiving come together at InLife Town hall

InLifers joined hands as they celebrated excellence, thanksgiving and the promise of a good life during this year's last town hall meeting.

President and CEO Mona Lisa B. de la Cruz opened the program highlighting the winning moments of InLifers who would be recognized during the program: this year's promotees, Life Office Management Association (LOMA) Awardees, those who have attained designations given by various industries and award-giving bodies, and service awardees, and encouraged everyone to continue to be passionate in their work, and ignite the same disposition in others.

Sr. Asst. Vice President and Customer Experience Management Center Head Jose A. Padilla, who is retiring by the end of this year, was honored with a special tribute by the Policyholders Services Division (PhSD), and a special retirement gift, a luxury watch, as InLife's expression of gratitude for his 36 years of service to the Company. Later, Mr. Padilla delivered a moving talk about how he started serving Insular Life with a promise that he will be a dedicated and effective employee of Insular Life, something he has consistently done for more than three decades. To everyone he said, "You are in a good company. And every time you (experience) challenges in your employment, go back to your first day, the day when you projected your best, especially when you (have difficulty waking up) in the morning, because of a lot of requirements, and customers who are difficult. Go back to that day, when you promised to yourself I will be a good employee of Insular Life."

This was followed by a presentation led by the Marketing Team, teaching everyone the steps to the new InLife Song, "A Lifetime for Good," sung by indie folk band, Ransom Collective.

Finally, InLife Executive Chairman Nina D. Aguas thanked everyone for the year that was, expressing her gratitude for the "fresh insights, multiple inspirations and memories of successes, failures, joy and sadness" this year has brought. She encouraged everyone to continue to find hope in challenges, security in the stage of fear, love in discord and strength in forgiveness, to enjoy the smile, but also to reflect on the sadness. In closing, she said "Genuine success comes only to those who are ready for it. So let's not step back and always find the grace and courage to step up to new challenges ahead. Carpe Diem, Seize the moment, seize the day."

The event was hosted by Adri Cailao and Raymond Alibutud.

35-year Service Awardees Emman German, Beth Natanauan, Ana Soriano, and Iris Aman (2nd, 3rd, 5th and 6th from left, respectively) with InLife Senior Execs Administrative Operations Group Head Duday Elicaño, Ms. Aguas, and Ms. de la Cruz (extreme left, 4th from left and extreme right, respectively.)

30-year Service Awardees Nene Macalipay and Pompeyo Catindig (2nd and 4th from left, respectively) with the InLife Execs.

25-year Service Awardees Roland Domingo, Rizalina Regala, Edgie Polistico, Grace Leviste, and Gilbert Nano (extreme left, 3rd, 4th, 5th, and 7th from left, respectively).

Mr. Padilla receives a token of gratitude from Insular Life execs (from left) PhSD Head Joey Reyes, Ms. Elicaño, Ms. Aguas and Ms. de la Cruz.

InLifers dance to Ransom Collective's "A Lifetime for good," the new InLife song, with the Marketing ladies.

Program hosts Adri and Raymond in above photo, while on right, Ms. Aguas delivers a message of gratitude and thanksgiving to InLifers.

